Summary of Client Conference:

Strengths and Progress:

I've been very impressed with your dedication to improving your language skills. You've been working diligently, and it is paying off. You've always taken what we have learned and applied it to your tasks. You have covered many useful topics, and are always eager to learn and apply new grammar points. You're punctual and ask questions when you don't understand something. That's a 'smart' student.

Suggestions for learning:

You accept and apply feedback consistently. You actively participate in class lessons and discussions. Having children at home while studying is challenging, so one thing you could do is review the asynchronous work more often in between classes. Build on the skills we learn in class by seeking further practice using websites, since using English outside of class is limited at this time.

Benchmarks achieved at the end of the assessment period:
